Why Visit Our Ohio Detox & Addiction Treatment Center for Georgia Residents?

It's worth making the trip to the Findlay Center, first and foremost, for our dedication to making sure your treatment plan fits your specific needs. Your stay will be precisely as long as you need it to be, with both long-term and short-term options available. Depending on the nature of your addiction, as well as how it affects your lifestyle, we will create a treatment plan that is specific to your needs and yours alone.

Your treatment plan will be led by an expert medical professional who will first help you see a safe and healthy detox procedure. From there, they will recommend a range of medical treatments, therapy options, as well as other tools that can help you complete your initial recovery, giving you the best chance of living free from addiction.

What to Expect from an Ohio Detox & Addiction Treatment Center for Georgia Residents

Making the trip from Georgia to our Ohio Detox & Addiction Treatment Center can seem intimidating, but our team is here to make sure you are as comfortable and safe as can be. This includes preparing you for every step of your detox and the following treatment plan.

Your treatment will typically begin with a detox. Detoxes are not pleasant experiences, but the importance in doing with our team is that it is made safe. Doctors and nurses will be there to monitor your safe recovery with the right tools to handle any potential dangers.

There is no set time for a detox to complete. Typically, it will depend on severity as well as the type of addiction you are facing. The worst withdrawal symptoms tend to subside after 48 hours, but our team will remain on hand, including doctors and psychiatrists, to help you recover as best as possible following that detox.
