

Vermont Residents Should Consider An Ohio Detox & Addiction Treatment Center

Posted on May 17, 2021

There is a large discrepancy when it comes to the amount of people who need to get detox and addiction treatment in the US, compared to the number of people who actually receive the treatment that is needed. In fact, in 2016, it was found that approximately one in thirteen people, aged twelve-years-old and over, required treatment for substance abuse. Only 18% of those that needed it were able to access it, and those statistics are similar today.

Those in need of treatment for addiction and detox can go untreated for a whole range of reasons. There could be insurance problems that means that costs won't be covered, or perhaps don't seek help because of particular beliefs. They may also live in an area where the treatment that is needed isn't available, which is why it can be a good idea to look outside of where you live, in order to get the best treatment for you or a loved one. For example, Vermont residents should consider an Ohio detox & addiction treatment center. Within a day's worth of driving or just a short flight, you could be in Ohio getting the treatment that you need to help you with the rest of your life.
