VERIFY MY INSURANCE

Drug overdoses in Indianapolis, Indiana are rising so rapidly that doctors have begun to hold back on the number of opiates they provide patients for fear that they may end up in the wrong hands. Due to this restriction, many addicts have taken to the street to get illegal opioids.

Between the years 2012 and 2016 synthetic opioid deaths increased by as much as 600 percent. The massive rise is disturbing and the need for treatment facilities is rising.

The use of street drugs has caused a rapid rise in diseases such as hepatitis C and HIV as users share needles. Opioid overdoses grew from 923 in 2010 to 1, 809 in 2017. At Findlay we work daily to combat these statistics and help the residents as well as others who come to our center to break the cycle of addiction and get back on track.
