

Supporting Partners Through Addiction Treatment: How Addiction Treatment Centers Provide Resources and Assistance

VERIFY MY INSURANCE

Addiction takes a toll on an individual and their loved ones. Watching a loved one's addiction can be devastating, and it's tough to know how to support someone when they're struggling with substance abuse.

In this blog post, we'll be discussing how addiction treatment centers can provide support for partners, the resources and assistance offered, and how Findlay Recovery Center can help.

Providing Support

Addiction treatment centers offer counseling sessions for both those struggling with addiction and their partners. They provide group counseling sessions, couples therapy, and support groups specifically aimed at helping partners navigate the challenges of addiction.

These therapy sessions provide a safe and supportive environment for individuals to share their experiences, and emotions, and provide solutions to the unique challenges that a partner may experience while trying to support their loved one through addiction.

Offering Resources and Assistance

Addiction treatment centers offer a wide range of resources and assistance to support partners. Some of these resources include educational material on addiction, family support programs, and parenting courses to learn how to help a loved one and children cope with the challenges and changes that come with addiction.

Treatment centers understand the financial strain that often comes with addiction treatment and can offer their assistance with insurance coverage and other financial aid programs to help ease these burdens.

Comprehensive Treatment Planning

Rehab specializes in comprehensive treatment planning that addresses a person's unique needs and helps them achieve long-term recovery. This approach means that not only will the person with addiction receive treatment but their partners will also receive counseling and support during this process.

Treatment plans can also involve behavioral therapies, medication-assisted treatment, and individual counseling and coaching to help individuals gain the skills and insights they need to maintain their sobriety.

Aftercare Assistance

Addiction treatment centers also offer aftercare assistance programs to ensure that those who have completed their treatment plan continue to receive the necessary support to maintain their recovery. This includes guidance and assistance with finding local support groups, such as Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) or similar groups, which offer ongoing peer support for people in recovery and their partners.
